

Teach on: Hot topics and practical strategies for today's classroom

A free five-webinar series for educators

This series is part of the Saint Rose Build the Teacher Pipeline Initiative, which aims to address the nationwide teacher shortage by growing the number of new teachers and supporting current teachers and other education professionals in their work.

ABOUT THE SESSIONS

- 90-minute, interactive and engaging webinars held from 3:30 to 5 p.m. via Zoom
- Free of charge
- Follow-up resources provided
- Educators can receive 1.5 hours of CTLE credit for each session attended. College students majoring in education can earn a badge for completing all five webinars in the series, which they can note on their resumes.

SCHEDULE AND TOPICS

February 7: Surviving the Mental Health Crisis: A Toolkit for Teachers

Practical strategies for educators, school counselors, school administrators, and other school professionals to support mental health of students and staff.

March 14: Practicing Culturally Responsive and Sustainable Teaching

Dive into what being culturally responsive may look and sound like in the classroom through the lens of inner-city elementary educators and administrators. The session will cover the guiding principles of culturally responsive teaching and the practice of giving students the skills they need for lifelong learning in and out of the classroom.

April 25: Strategies for Successfully Working with Language Learners in the K-12 Classroom

Teachers in grades K-12 will gain practical strategies for working with and supporting language learners. Teachers will learn tips for teaching their content and ways to develop positive relationships with children and families.

May 24: Social Emotional Learning: From Theory to Everyday Practice in Schools

This session will provide a framework of best practices for Social Emotional Learning featuring a panel of teachers and administrators who have implemented SEL in their schools.

June 7: Navigating Parent Communication

Teachers and administrators share their most effective strategies for conversations and communication with students' parents and caregivers – the good, the bad, and the complicated.

Contact Lori Ana Valentin, director of professional development and continuing education, at valentil@strose.edu for more information.

Register for these free webinars and see additional opportunities at <https://grad.strose.edu/educator-development/> or by scanning the QR code:

The No. 1 granter of education degrees and certificates in New York State

The College of Saint
Rose